WATER USAGE AND STATE MANDATED REDUCTIONS

The months of March and April brought with it several storms to catch us up and put us slightly ahead of rainfall for 2016. The mild weather we experienced in February was a distant memory and to our satisfaction, did not result in a huge increase in residential water usage. Our conservation efforts rebounded nicely from the sub-par marks of 17% and 18% in January and February to a savings of 41% in March followed by a 36% savings in April. These estimates are based on our consumption in 2013.

Spring is known for sporadic storms and cold spells, so we would like to remind residents to quickly turn off irrigation when the chance of rain is eminent, and if we experience measurable precipitation to keep irrigation off for at least 3 or 4 days. Now we are experiencing warm weather and fewer rain days and we would like to remind all residents of the mandatory 3 days per week schedule. The State is reviewing data from the seasonal snowpack, reservoir levels and aquifer depletion and there are slight chances it may modify the restrictions, but until then all restrictions are still in place and must be followed. Please visit the MHCS D web site under Health and Sanitation for information on Water Conservation and Water Restrictions for further information.

When you click on the button, it will take you to a page where you can choose to enter in your information or not and you can report a problem. You will receive updates on the status of the report.
